It is really hard for me to choose the most thankful family member since all of them are so valuable and irreplaceable to me.

Nevertheless, if I have to choose one of them for my essay, I would not hesitate to talk about my younger sister.

I believe that there is very few people who do not feel thankful for their parents. However, mostly, including myself, people rarely say "thanks" to their siblings.

I think that my sister and I have impacted to each other for a long time. It is not easy to point out exact one since the impact of her, and of course, impact from me to her, has spreaded through every day of my life and her life.

Unless my indifferentness keep my from noticing her sacrifice, I believe that she did not sacrifice something for me or abandon a single change because of me. Rather, she exactly figure out what she wants to do and what effect would be on me if she does so. And she tries her best to succeed since she understands that only limited amount of resources can be expected from our parent, and her laziness results to waste of money, time and chance.

This is what our parent wants us to do. I believe that it is one of the most helpful lesson that they give us. Although the lesson is finally helpful for us, I think that it is absolutely not easy thing for a young girl could understand and put into practice. I'm so thankful to her and I really want to say "you've done well".

There is very rare chance to say "thank you" or "I love you" to her. She also does not expect from me to say such words., But we don't need such words to know that we do care of each other and do love each other.
